Objectives

The Erasmus+ course on CLIL Methodology for Educators focuses on the development of lesson facilitation where the dual targets of content and language are being simultaneously pursued. Sessions in this course will focus on scaffolding lessons, increasing communicative interaction among student, setting collaborative tasks, introducing target language, promoting enquiry-based learning, and providing support for the learners.

Programme

The seminar programmes take place in Atlantic Language's twin centres – Galway, the cultural capital of Ireland on the beautiful Atlantic Ocean coast; and Dublin, the vibrant and cosmopolitan capital.

Participants will be provided with 'Erasmus+' Staff Mobility (STT) certificates and EUROPASS upon completion.* With a duration of 5 days (25 hours of classes, divided between morning and afternoon), the seminar also includes a cultural immersion in various activities including an Irish Dance Night and Irish Pub Night.

There is also the option of an extra day-trip to the splendid Aran Islands on the edge of Europe.

Participants

This course is designed for both teachers at second level and higher education institutions who work with students in seminars, tutorials and workshops, using English as the medium of communication. Participants should have CEFR level B2 or higher in English, and be prepared to develop their use of English for the facilitation of CLIL lessons with non-native speaking students of their academic subjects.

*Educators without Erasmus+ funding are also very welcome to join the course.

Accommodation

Accommodation is provided by the organizer and included in the price of the seminar. The organizer offers four options of 7-night (Sat to Sat) accommodation in Galway:

CLIL For Educators Seminar Workshop Programme

Atlantic Language's Content/Language Integrated Learning programme for Educators has been refined over ten years of delivering high quality educational methodology courses for teachers of second and third level and considers the essential needs and challenges faced by users of the English language in teaching a subject's content in parallel with a foreign language. The seminar programme is delivered over 25 workshop hours, divided between mornings (3h) and afternoons (2h).

Our CLIL specialist team of trainers employ a collaborative approach to course delivery, utilising pre-arrival questionnaires and needs analyses to adapt the course to the most practicable and beneficial programme possible for the participants. See sample schedule below.
